I've recently changed a website which is being developed in PHP to use Ajax. One thing I can't seem to figure out is what the best method is to handle form values being posted from one PHP page to another, I've thought about using $_SESSION but I haven't tried it yet and I'm not 100% sure it will work for the form values I want to capture. I basically have 3 forms on my website and want to capture the input values of each form when submitted. The PHP code I have so far is: Hopefully someone can help me find a solution :) A: For user input, a common approach is to use hidden form elements. For example:
