ann alexander, u.s. army (1918-2011) the only black lieutenant in the u. army air corps' women's transport squadron (wts), alexander served in diverse capacities: she held the rank of sergeant, served as a crew chief, and worked as a flight nurse. as a flight nurse, alexander established a hospital and gift shop and nursed many military service members, including pilots, surgeons, and medical personnel. she also supervised the construction and supply of the hospitals and made extensive contact with local residents. alexander retired from the army in 1947, and in 2010 received the congressional gold medal for her service with the wts. ( a ) marion nathan barnewall, jr. (1915-2000) a former republican congressman from pennsylvania, marion nathan barnewall, jr. (1915-2000) returned to his home state following his retirement from the u.s. house of representatives to resume a long and distinguished political career, running for the senate twice and for the united states house of representatives in four elections. with his wife, barbara, he returned to their rural pennsylvania home after his military discharge from the army air forces at the conclusion of world war ii. born in philadelphia, marion nathan barnewall came from an entrepreneurial family. his grandfather, william barnewall, had moved to the united states from boulogne, france, in 1844 to start a boot manufacturing business. the barnewalls lived in a house that a descendant called "god's house," a place where the family would gather on sundays. for the remainder of the week, the family attended prayer meetings at the nearby church of the good shepherd. in the united states house of representatives, barnewall was known as a staunch conservative, voted against the civil rights acts of 1957 and 1960, and supported the vietnam war. he served as a senior member of the defense appropriations subcommittee from 1977 to 1990, overseeing the military budget for the period. barnewall was a defendant in a wrongful death lawsuit filed on behalf of his relatives in 1997; the lawsuit was later settled in favor of the estate of marion nathan barnewall.
